Retreat Leader: Michael Hryniuk, Ph.D. is a theologian, educator, psychotherapist, and spiritual director. He has served as the Executive Director of the Henri Nouwen Society and the Associate Director of the John Main Centre for Meditation and Inter-religious Dialogue at Georgetown University.

The season of Advent invites us to place our faith and hope in the saving power of Christ Jesus. As the prophet Isaiah writes in the Hebrew scriptures, "The people living in darkness have seen a great Light." What is the spiritual meaning of the darkness that seems to threaten our world and how do we live into the Light of Christ that is our ultimate source of hope? How does the practice of meditation open us to this divine Light promised to us in Advent and strengthen us to face the challenges that confront us personally and collectively as a society? We invite you to join us for a retreat day of prayer, meditation, reflection, and sharing as we explore these questions together.
